

THE RECORD OF GMO DEALINGS AND GM PRODUCTS

The Record of GMO dealings and GM Products (the Record) is a complete list of all dealings with live, viable genetically modified organisms (GMOs) approved by the Gene Technology Regulator (Regulator), and of all GM products approved by other Regulators.

The purpose of the Record is to provide the Australian public with ready access to information about GMOs and GM products being regulated in Australia.

A key feature of the gene technology regulatory system is the release of as much information about dealings with GMOs as possible, including information on applications, licence conditions and the location of GMO release sites. The Regulator frequently adds information to the Record to produce a comprehensive database of GMO dealings and GM products within Australia.

Australia is one of the first countries in the world to make such a comprehensive Record available to the community. This Record is a substantive demonstration of the openness and transparency which characterises the operation of the national regulatory system for GMOs in Australia.
